Biblical Apocalyptic, Prophecy, and Wisdom

RELM 411-YZ1

Spring 2027

Important: Please check your Canvas course and/or your Loyola email account for an email from the instructor alerting you the course is open, then reply to that email confirming you are ready to begin the course.

Course Overview

This course examines the biblical genres of prophecy, wisdom, and apocalyptic; their intersections; and their implications for today. This course presumes some background on the Bible.

Key Learning Outcomes

As a result of taking this course, students will be able to

- draw on biblical scholarship to understand the complexity of the biblical genres of prophecy, wisdom, and apocalyptic, their similarities and differences.
- reflect critically on cultural appropriations of these genres throughout history.
- draw implications of these genres for one's own life and for social and environmental justice.

Evaluation and Course Requirements

Sequence of Topics/Calendar of Assignments

Assigned readings, videos, and discussion items are provided in the weekly modules of the Canvas course. Online assignments are due by Sunday at 11:59 p.m. of each week, unless otherwise noted. You are expected to post or submit assignments by the due date. If you need additional time to complete an assignment, please contact me before the due date to discuss the situation and determine an acceptable resolution. Submission of late assignments or failure to submit assignments is unacceptable and will result in points deducted from your final course grade and could result in course failure.

Course Policies

Incomplete Grade Policy

Students are subject to the university policy regarding incomplete grades with the following additions to university policy. Grades of Incomplete are given at the instructor's discretion. Students must complete LIM's Incomplete Grade Request Form found in the Resources » Policies, Forms, & Services section of their Canvas course. Students should first inquire of their instructor whether or not they are eligible for an incomplete; this must occur with sufficient time to complete the process explained here. To be eligible, students may not have received an Incomplete in the previous semester, must have completed at least 75% of the course work to date, and must have at least a C or above in the course. After the instructor makes an initial assessment of eligibility, including checking with the LIM Office to ensure there was no Incomplete in the previous semester and finds the student eligible, by the due date of the course's final assignment, a student must complete and obtain all signatures for LIM's Incomplete Grade Request Form found in the Resources section of their Canvas course and submit it to their instructor, who will forward a copy to the LIM Director. LIM graduate students may not receive Incompletes in LIM courses in consecutive semesters.

Attendance & Participation

Students are subject to the university policy regarding attendance found online in the Bulletin. Students in online courses communicate their presence by active participation in weekly discussions. Each course's instructor sets requirements for how many times students must post on the Discussion Board in Canvas. Failing to post during the first week of class may result in removal from the course. If you foresee that you will be unable to post in a given week, please contact the instructor ahead of time. Extensions for posting are given at the instructor's discretion and for a valid reason may be granted if arranged ahead of time. In extraordinary circumstances, students may arrange with their instructor to post up to two weeks after a deadline, though this may entail a grade reduction. Posts and other assignments submitted more than two weeks late may be subject to a grade of zero. If students do not post in a given week, they are considered absent. Absence for more than one week without contacting the instructor may result in removal from and failure of the course.

Tentatively, there will be two optional video conferences during the course. To participate, students will need access to a computer with a web camera and microphone, and earphones or earbuds. More information will be included in the Canvas course.

University Policies

Please read Part 2 of the syllabus (located in Canvas) for university policies on plagiarism, AI, accessible education, and more.
