

The Challenge of Environmental Justice Today

This panel will address the place of "environmental justice" in Catholic Social Teaching and the implications of Pope Francis's emphasis on it for people of faith and our country today. In particular, it will explore the direct connection between environmental degradation and its disproportionate impact on people of color and the poor. This event is free and open to the public. Click here to register to receive the Zoom link one week ahead of the event.

Day: Thursday, October 22, 2020

Time: 7:00-8:30 p.m. CDT

Register here

Panelists

Fred Kammer, S.J., J.D., Director of Loyola University New Orleans' Jesuit Social Research Institute.

Alison McCrary, J.D. is a social justice movement lawyer and currently serves as the Practitioner-In-Residence at Wake Forest University's School of Divinity justice advocate.

David Robinson-Morris, Ph.D. is Director of the Center for Equity, Justice, and the Human Spirit at Xavier University of Louisiana.

For More Information: <http://cnh.loyno.edu/lim/roppolo>

This event is supported by the Fr. Ignatius Roppolo Memorial Endowment. Archbishop Gregory Aymond wrote recently that Msgr. Roppolo was "a beloved priest of the Archdiocese of New Orleans who ... had a pastoral heart and truly gave of his life in a collegial and collaborative way to strengthen the church among us."